

SANTA BARBARA FOOD CYCLE EXPLORATION

Saturday, May 19, 2018 11 am–1 pm

UC Santa Barbara Greenhouse and Garden Project

Where does our food come from? What are issues affecting food access in this community?

Join us to explore these questions with farmers, beekeepers, scientists, and activists from the Santa Barbara Foodshed. The Santa Barbara community is invited to attend this free event to learn from local experts about the food cycle from soil and seed, to seedling and harvest, to distribution and justice. Participants will engage with local, seasonal varieties in various stages of reproduction and growth at UC Santa Barbara's Greenhouse and Garden Project. Together participants will integrate science, action, and justice through an exploration of the food cycle from a diversity of perspectives.

Each local expert will give a short presentation followed by Q&A with the audience. The event will conclude with a roundtable discussion and time for enjoying a local fruit and vegetable spread, making seed bombs, and exploring the gardens and local produce.

Free parking; detailed map on back.

Reservations are encouraged; space is limited.

Register online: www.ihc.ucsb.edu

Sponsored by the University of California Global Food Initiative's CLEAR Project (Communication, Literacy, & Education for Agricultural Research) and UC Santa Barbara's Interdisciplinary Humanities Center.

The UC Santa Barbara Greenhouse and Garden Project is located next to Lot 38 (behind Harder Stadium).

Directions from the 101 South:

Exit Los Carneros.
Right on Los Carneros.
Left on Mesa Road.
Right on Stadium Road.
Right into Lot 38.

Directions from the 101 North:

Exit Los Carneros.
Left on Los Carneros.
Left on Mesa Road.
Right on Stadium Road.
Right into Lot 38.

Reserved parking spaces and permits for the event are provided free of charge in Lot 38.

