

INTERDISCIPLINARY Humanities
CENTER

Talk:

Category Accounts: Identity and Normativity in Sequences of Action

FEB
01
FRI

1:30 PM
1205 Education

CHASE WESLEY
RAYMOND

University of Colorado, Boulder

Chase Wesley Raymond holds PhDs in Hispanic Linguistics (2014) and Sociology (2016), both from UCLA, and is currently Assistant Professor of Linguistics at the University of Colorado, Boulder. His research interests lie at the intersection of language and (different facets of) social identity and normativity, in both ordinary and institutional interaction. Recent and forthcoming publications include articles in Language, Research on Language & Social Interaction, Language in Society, and the Journal of Sociolinguistics.

For more information, visit:
www.ihc.ucsb.edu/events

Sponsored by the IHC's Language Interaction and Social Organization (LISO) Research Focus Group and the Department of Sociology